

Midterms

Isaiah M. and Mckeon R.

Midterms this year are different. There are three tests in one day now instead of two. There will be more tests crammed into each day, which means more studying and less time. For the first two days, we will be having three midterms per day and getting out at 2 PM. On the third day, we will get a noon dismissal because there will only be two midterms left. This is a new, more complicated way of doing our midterms, but we will see how it turns out. Although we are having three midterms a day, dual enrollment Marshall students we do not have to attend that class on the testing days, which is a huge plus. Winter break begins on December 20th, and continues for two full weeks. School resumes on January 3rd. This break is shorter than the break we had last year unfortunately.

SPORTS

McKenzie M.

Written by: Noah B.

Congratulations to the humble-kind hearted person, one of the most generous and well deserved awards in school history. This girl is an absolute athlete to say the least. She actually just recently signed with Gonzaga and then played in an All American game the following week. . I recently asked why she chose Gonzaga, and she told me it was the best fit for her and that she fell in love with the school immediately. Not to mention she is the only female athlete to have her jersey retired.
